Many years ago, my mom's boss gave her a pair of pink flamingos made from tube lights, so she put them next to the pond for Christmas. Her brother-in-law (and neighbor, who shares the pond with my parents) teased her about them. And for the next couple Christmases, he gave her a pink flamingo. He passed from brain cancer in Oct '06 and his wife brought my mom a final flamingo that Christmas - a crystal ornament that she still displays year-round. The grey background is for brain cancer awareness.
